Non-immigrant Temporary Visa

L-1 VISA

Eligibility
and Strategy

MARYLAND | WASHINGTON DC | VIRGINIA

Singh and Associates knows how to navigate the paperwork and agency requirements to prepare you for the most successful and quickest path to obtaining the L-1 visa.

This special, temporary non-immigrant visa category allows sponsorship for two types of employees:

- Manager/Executive position of authority related to policy and operational business categories. The guidelines for this definition are particularly strict. Managers holding this visa category do not supervise a subordinate staff, excepting personal staff, but instead implement an organizational plan or procedure; develop company functions and policy. There are allowances made for an employee in this category to perform a variety of problem solving responsibilities which may transcend the detached supervisory role generally expected. Singh and Associates can explain the fine points of these definitions and prepare the appropriate petition papers.

- Specialized position requiring a detailed knowledge of products, procedures or services. A general knowledge or level of job proficiency does not qualify for this visa category. We can help you determine the guidelines as they apply to your employment need, and if the employing business fits the four allowed categories.

Singh and Associates know what the requirements are for the issue of a L-1 visa. We prepare for the filing of the form I-129 and the special L supplement to be included with the form I-129. These materials are submitted to the USCIS Service Center in the same jurisdiction area as the place of employment.

We can also file for spouse and children to gain the L-2 visa as dependents. A spouse may qualify for the L-1 in order to legally work within the United States. The appropriate paperwork must be prepared and filed.

Special Consideration:

Will it be necessary for the applicant employee to work abroad for the applying company for a year before eligibility for the L-1? Certain special requirements can be outlined and applied to your situation by Singh and Associates..

Singh and Associates are experienced and knowledgeable immigration law specialists. We can make sure you have put forward the best prepared documentation to make obtaining the L-1 a reality. Let us begin helping you today.
